Ten year experience with subfascial implants - what the measurements can tell you

Dear GCA Academy members,

The use of the subfascial plane has gained popularity because of the similar postoperative recovery to that of the subglandular plane, and similar breast sensitivity to that of the submuscular plane. Dr. Brown will share his experience and data of more than 10 years using this technique specially in those patients with at least 20 mm of soft tissue at the lateral sternal margin. The conclusions have been published in an international peer-reviewed publication.

Speaker: Dr. Tim Brown, MChir FRCS(Plast) FRACS DMCC, Australia

Dr. Brown is registered as a specialist cosmetic plastic and reconstructive surgeon in both Australia and the UK. He completed his medical and surgical studies (and a further postgraduate research degree) at the University of Cambridge, England. He then undertook surgical training in the UK and USA.

Since 1995, Dr. Brown has specialised in plastic and cosmetic surgery and is a Fellow of the Royal Australasian Society of Plastic Surgeons (FRACS), the International Society of Aesthetic Plastic Surgeons and an overseas member of the British Association of Aesthetic, Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons. He is also a Fellow of the Australasian College of Cosmetic Surgery.

He is the recipient of a number of international and national awards including the Mentor Prize awarded by the British Association of Plastic Surgeons, the Hackett Memorial Prize awarded by the British Association of Aesthetic Plastic Surgeons, as well as the prize for Best Publication from Australasian Society of Aesthetic Plastic Surgeons.

Highly skilled in all aspects of cosmetic plastic surgery, he has authored over 70 peer reviewed articles in plastic and cosmetic surgery. Tim's particular interests include among others breast augmentation, breast reduction, lift, revision & implant removal surgery

As an international expert in his field and with a highly experienced team, Tim's vision is to provide his patients with the very best outcomes, whilst experiencing excellent patient care in his own practice in Australia.
