Breast augmentation with local tumescent anesthesia, areolar approach, cohesive gel silicone implants

Dear GCA Academy members,

Dr. Rebelo is a precursor in several techniques of Aesthetic Surgery performed under local Tumescent Anaesthesia. Tumescent anaesthesia describes the practice of injecting a very dilute solution of local anaesthetic combined with epinephrine and sodium bicarbonate into tissue until it becomes firm and tense (tumescent). It was initially described in the field of liposuction but now more surgical applications for the technique are further developed. In this webinar he is going to explain how this type of anesthesia option is managed together with breast augmentation through an areolar approach and the use of cohesive gel silicone implants.
